DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 3, 4, 7-9, 11-13, and 15-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the article to Yu et al, "Two dimensional motion vector coding for low bitrate videophone applications" (hereinafter, "prior art").

As applied to claims 1, 3, 4, 7-9, 11-13, and 15-19, the prior art discloses the same video coding with efficient technique for coding x and y components of a motion vector using a joint entropy code selected from a table comprising set of predetermined entropy codes. Long or short codes may be assigned respectively to code differential motion vectors based on their histogram properties. Escape codes are also utilized for certain image regions. The entropy codes are selected to maintain within a target bit rate. (See Abstract, p. 414, 2nd col., 2nd ¶, p. 415, 1st col., 1st and 2nd ¶, p. 415, section 2 in its entirety).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2613

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 5-6 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yu et al.

As applied to claim ~~6~~⁵, Yu et al. discloses the same as noted in ¶2 above except for application in object based coding. However, it is viewed that the basis for differential coding that applies to block based coding is essentially the same as in object based coding. Instead of dealing with differential block and its associated motion vector, differential video object plane (VOP) and its associated motion vector are considered for each object to be coded. Therefore, one skilled in the art would have found it obvious to extrapolate the technique as outlined in Yu et al. for object based coding as claimed.

As applied to claims 6 and 10, it is well settled that video coding may be implemented via hardware or software or a combination of both. Thus, for software implementation, it would have been obvious to have a recording medium to store the coding program as claimed.
